

The nature of the eyght tunes.

1. The first is meeke : deuout to see,
2. The second sad : in maiesty.
3. The third doth rage : and roughly brayth.
4. The fourth doth fawne : and flattry playth,
5. The fyfth deligth : and laugheth the more,
6. The sixt bewayleth : it weepeth full fore,
7. The seuenth tredeth stoute : in froward race,
8. The eyghte goeth milde : in modeft pace.

The Tenor of these partes be for the people when they will fyng alone, the other parts, put for greater queers, or to fuche as will fyng or play them priuatelye.

on it to muse: to kepe it day and night.
 on it to muse: to kepe it day and night.
 on it to muse: to keepe it day and night.
 on it to muse: to keepe it day and night.

3. He like shall bee : the planted tree,
 nie let the riuers course :
 Which fruth in tyde : whose leaues abide,
 all prosperth what he doeth.

4. Not fo, not fo : the wicked do,
 lyke duft or chaffe they bee :
 Uphoyft by winde : as light by kynde,
 from face of earth to see.

5. Therefore these men : so wicked then,
 in iudgement shall not stand :
 Nor sinners bee : in companie,
 of righteous men of hand.

6. The Lord doth know : and will auow,
 mens wayes that are of God :
 Where shall decaie : the beaten waie,
 of wicked men so brode.

To God on hye : in Trinitie,
 in unities agayne :
 Reigne, power, and prayse : As due alwayes,
 to hym be giuen, Amen.

\ In the main text of the psalter, from which verses
 3-6 are drawn, verse 2 is as follows:*

*2. But holdth euen still : Gods lawe in will,
 with all his hartes delight :
 And will him use : on it to muse,
 to keepe it day and night.*
