

Let us, my Lesbia, live and love

A 3 part glee

Anonymous translation of the Latin poem by Gaius Valerius Catullus (ca. 84 BC – ca. 54 BC)

John Stafford Smith (1750-1836)

Moderato

[Counter-tenor] Let us, my Les - bia live and love, nor cast a mo ment's thought a -

[Tenor] Let us, my Les - bia live and love, nor cast a mo - ment's thought a -

Bass Let us, my Les - bia live and love, nor cast a mo - ment's thought a -

8

A. way, whe - ther a pee - vish world ap - prove, or what they think, or what they say.

T. way, whe - ther a pee - vish world ap - prove, or what they say.

B. way, whe - ther a pee - vish world ap - prove, or what they think, or what they say.

A. The sun that sets shall rise a - gain, but when our short lived day is o'er, one long e - ter - nal

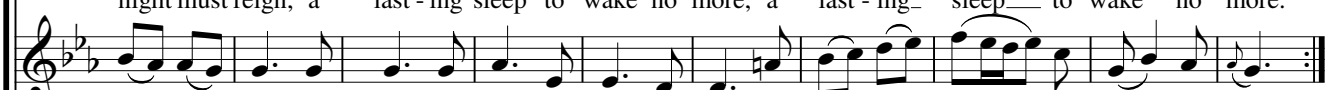

T. The sun that sets shall rise a - gain, but when our short lived day is o'er, one long e - ter - nal

B. The sun that sets shall rise a - gain, one long e - ter - nal

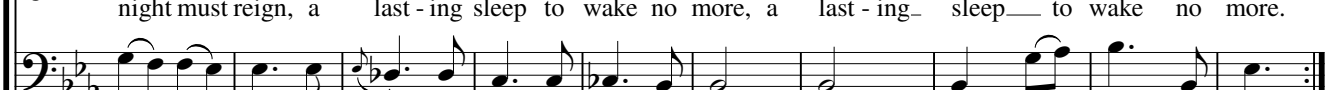

26

A.

night must reign, a last-ing sleep to wake no more, a last-ing sleep to wake no more.

T.

night must reign, a last-ing sleep to wake no more, a last-ing sleep to wake no more.

B.

night must reign, a last-ing sleep to wake no more, to wake no more.

36 Vivace

A.

Let us then live and love to-day and kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way, kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way,

T.

Let us then live and love to-day and kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way, kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way,

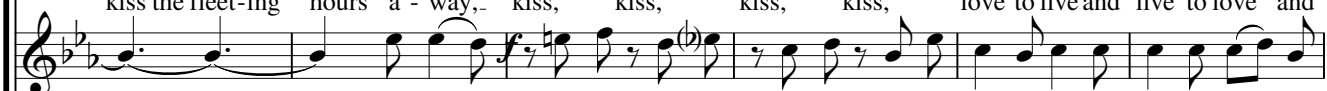

B.

Let us then live and love to-day and kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way,

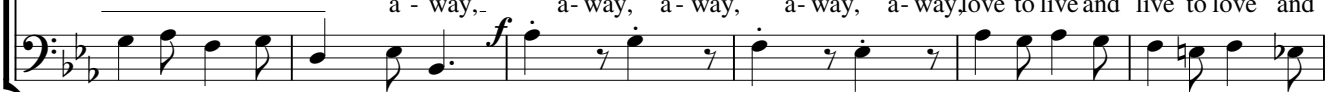

42

A.

kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way, kiss, kiss, kiss, kiss, love to live and live to love and

T.

a-way, a-way, a-way, a-way, a-way, love to live and live to love and

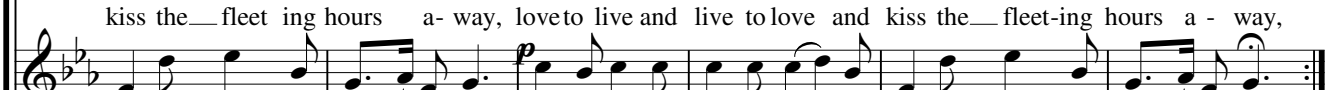

B.

kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way, kiss, kiss, kiss, kiss, love to live and live to love and

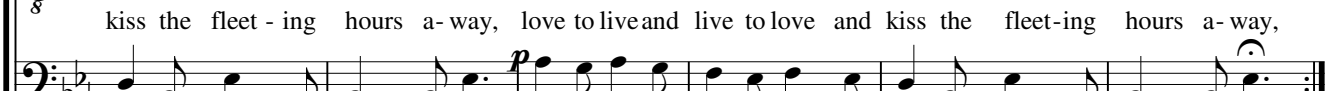

48

A.

kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way, love to live and live to love and kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way,

T.

kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way, love to live and live to love and kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way,

B.

kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way, love to live and live to love and kiss the fleet-ing hours a-way,