

Anonymous Author, apparently first appearing in Ingalls 1805
87. 87. Irregular

The Enquirer

Treble-Tenor-Bass Transcribed from Ingalls' Christian Harmony, 1805; Counter by B. C. Johnston, 2017.

D minor

Jeremiah Ingalls, 1805

Tr. 5
1. Oh! that some one would tell me, Is this the road that Christians go? Hark, and hear what has be-fell me, Now my heart is filled with woe.
2. Oft with darkness I'm sur-roun-ded, Peace nor comfort can I find; If I hear the gos-pel sound, it Brings no com-fort to my mind.

C.
3. O! the sin, that's in me lur-king, Of-ten brings me very low; Sa-tan still with me wor-king, Is this the road that Christians go?
4. If Christ Je-sus, by his spi-rit, Took possession of my heart, Could I not then plead his me-rit, Should I from his way de-part?

T.
5. But can this be all de-lu-sion, Which by turns I think I feel? Who can tell the whole con-clu-sion? To the Lord I must ap-peal.
6. But if bread of life's been broken, And my heart renewed by grace, Je-sus, wilt thou as a to-ken, Let me see thy smi-ling face?

B.

Edited by B. C. Johnston, 2017

1. Words omitted from stanzas 1 and 3, to make the meter fit the music.
2. Counter part written.