

Each lovely grace

William Corkine (fl. 1610-1617)

Cantus

8

Each love-ly grace my La - dy doth pos-sess, Let all men view, and

Bassus

6

8

in their view ad - mire, In whose sweet breast all vir - tuous thoughts do rest,

9

8

Zea - lous to pi - ty, Chaste in her own de - sire, And to make up a rare and wor - thy crea - ture, Both wife, and chaste, and fair in form and fea - ture,

12

8

15

8

En - ter but in - to thought of her per - fec - ti - on, Thou

17

8

wilt con - fess, thou wilt con - fess, thou wilt con - fess,

19

8

and in con - fes - sing prove, How none de - serves like praise, nor yet like love.

Source: William Corkine, The Second Book of Ayres (London, 1612), no. 1